MedPrep@Emory
An 8-week residential program for undergraduate and graduate students, underrepresented in medicine, interested in enhancing skills to increase competitiveness in medical school admissions.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW
Throughout the summer, students will receive comprehensive Medical College Admission Test (MCAT) predation, opportunities to interact with healthcare providers during weekly seminars, formal mentoring and service learning projects. The seminars are designed to enhance students’ strengths and provide preparation for the medical school admissions process. Seminar topics include:

• Writing personal statements
• Effective time management
• Academic preparation
• Wellness
• Mock interviews

MedPrep@Emory is tuition-free. Housing and program materials are provided by Emory University School of Medicine. Participants will receive a stipend to subsidize the cost of meals, transportation and other living expenses.

APPLICATION REQUIREMENTS
• Official Transcripts from all colleges attended
